

Philip A. Maddox, MD

Dr. Maddox is a member of The Orthopaedic Center Sports Medicine Team. His practice has centered primarily around surgery of the hand, wrist and elbow combined with emphasis on sports medicine. He concentrates on problems of the upper extremity (shoulder to fingertips) including those caused by trauma, arthritis, vascular disease or birth defects. Practical examples include treatment of cartilage and ligament of the hand, wrist and elbow, carpal tunnel syndrome, degenerative arthritis, fractures and tendon lacerations. Dr. Maddox is the team physician for area high schools as well as a consultant for the Tennessee Valley Vipers, the Huntsville Havoc and Alabama A&M. He routinely presents lectures and instructional courses as well as teaches medical students, residents and patient groups. As many of the injuries seen in Workers' Comp. and sports involve the upper extremity, he has been active in both arenas and has developed a clear understanding of the needs of patients, employers and athletes to return to the normal work routine and competitive environments.
